Tour of TGen, the Translational Genomics Research Institute

TGen, part of City of Hope, is an Arizona-based, nonprofit medical research institute, dedicated to conducting groundbreaking research with life-changing results. TGen scientists work to unravel the genetic components of common and complex diseases, including cancer, neurological disorders, infectious disease, and rare childhood disorders.

The tour will start with a short lecture on the history of TGen and their current research areas, followed by a walk through their facility and lab spaces where we will hear from their scientists.
